

Helena Alegre

Helena is a principal researcher at the National Civil Engineering Laboratory (LNEC) and Director of the Hydraulics and Environment Department, a research unit with about a hundred employees.

She is a member of the National Water Council and the Board of Directors of the Portuguese Water Partnership. She chairs the Advisory Board and is a member of the Strategic Board of LIS-Water.

She is a Honorary Member and a Distinguished Fellow of the International Water Association, where she has served as Senior Vice President, member of the Board of Directors, member of the Strategic Council and coordinator of specialized groups, among other roles.

She specializes in performance assessment, asset management and water loss management and energy efficiency of water utilities. She is (co)author of more than 800 publications, including 26 books.