

João Branco Pedro

João Branco Pedro is a Senior Researcher and Head of the Buildings Department at LNEC (National Laboratory for Civil Engineering). He holds a degree in Architecture from the Faculty of Architecture of the University of Lisbon (1994) and a PhD in Architecture from the Faculty of Architecture of the University of Porto (2001).

He joined LNEC in 1994 and has since been involved in scientific research projects and consultancy work for external entities. He has also taken part in working groups responsible for drafting proposals for technical building regulations. The results of his work have been disseminated through publications, lectures, and training courses.

His main field of research is housing, particularly in the areas of quality definition, quality assessment methods, evaluation of building condition, and the organisation and implementation of technical building regulations.