

Lia Vasconcelos

PhD in Environmental Engineering-Social Systems, is a Professor at the DCEA at FCT-UNL and a researcher at MARE (www.mare-centre.pt/pt). Her research focuses on innovative decision-making processes and new forms of collaborative governance in environmental public policies. She is the coordinator of the Network for Environmental Studies in Portuguese-speaking Countries (REALP) at UNL. Her publications include the book Sustainability in the 21st century - The Power of Dialogue (2015). She has coordinated national and international projects, specifically in the collaborative field, and has received several awards and recognitions: Prize of Iconic Women Creating a Better World For ALL - Associations that Work 2019, Responsible Research Innovation 2015, Significant Participatory Practices, Prize of Collaborative Research 2013-2014 and Communication Award 2013.